Research

I have a bachelor of arts, from various faculties but with a major in language. I work, basically and literally, with finding the right words for the right opportunity. I have worked as a reporter and editor, for several years with my own business, until I started to do communication. I still very much enjoy writing articles and meeting, sitting down, and talking to new people. My aim is to make things easy to understand and to cut the crap without being rude.

I work part-time at NanoLund since January 2020 and am usually to be found there on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The rest of my working hours are spent in the communications department at the Faculty of Engineering, LTH, Lund University.
