

Filippo Verre works as a post-doc researcher at Lund University at the Centre for Advanced Middle Eastern Studies (CMES). He holds a PhD in Geopolitics at the University of Pisa and is the President of AB AQUA - Think Tank di Idro-Strategia, Italy's first hydro-strategy think tank. Previously, he graduated in Law (LLB, 2015) and Political Science (BA, 2016). He subsequently completed his postgraduate studies in Oxford, where he obtained a Master of Arts (MA, 2016) in International Studies - International Relations from Oxford Brookes University. Afterwards, he studied in Rome at the SIOI (Italian Society for International Organization), where he obtained a master's degree (MPS, 2017) in Diplomatic and Economic Studies. His main research interests concern the geopolitics of water, Asian geo-economic structure, and sub-Saharan and Middle Eastern political history. A big sports fan in general, he follows NBA and rugby with interest.